NEW FISHERIES INFORMATION STANDS WELL RECEIVED

Recently the Department of Fisheries has installed around 50 Fisheries Information Display Stands in the major retail tackle businesses around Western Australia.

Recreational anglers are regulated by many, sometimes complicated rules and restrictions which requires fishers to be up to date with the latest regulations. After consultation with the Tackle Industry and Recfishwest, Fisheries identified an opportunity to improve the distribution of Recreational Fishing Guides, educational brochures and other important regional information to anglers through local tackle shops and businesses.

It stands to reason the first place recreational fishers go for good up to date information is their local tackle shop. The new Information stands will maximise the communication and education benefits tackle stores provide in promoting a responsible fishing message direct to the recreational fishing public. In partnership with the Department of Fisheries, Recfishwest and the Tackle industry are proud to have been involved in helping to develop improved distribution of these important information resources.

To pick up a copy of the latest recreational fishing rules and regulations or even just a new fish measuring sticker, pop on down to your local tackle shop. If you have any questions you will find the staff more than willing to explain the rules and regulations in more detail for you. While you are there you can also purchase your compulsory release weight - if you haven't already got one in the boat as well as pickup a free DVD on how to use it correctly. Some can even help you apply for your new Fishing from Boat Licence over the internet while you are there.
